Peter Valerio is the Director of Information Technology at Meyers Nave, bringing more than 20 years of experience leading technology strategy and high-performing teams in complex professional services environments.

He oversees the firm's technology ecosystem, aligning cybersecurity, information management, and innovation initiatives with the firm's strategic objectives. Since joining Meyers Nave in 2016, Peter has led transformative efforts that have modernized technology platforms, strengthened security, enhanced collaboration, and improved operational efficiency.

Peter is passionate about leveraging technology to create business value and exceptional client service. He actively evaluates emerging technologies, including artificial intelligence, to help the firm unlock new efficiencies, strengthen knowledge sharing, and better serve clients. Known for his collaborative and service-oriented leadership style, Peter fosters a culture of innovation, accountability, and continuous improvement while empowering teams to deliver exceptional results.

An active member of the International Legal Technology Association (ILTA), Peter also participates in professional communities focused on cybersecurity, information governance, and responsible AI adoption. He believes technology is most valuable when it fosters innovation, strengthens client trust, and empowers attorneys to deliver exceptional service and results in an evolving legal landscape.
